Feminism in Modern India With
Special reference to Indian Cinema

Introduction: Feminism is a movement that advocates social, political, economical, and every type of equality among genders irrespective of their sexes. Even 21st century is a male-dominated society. Moon is now not so far, but women are still struggling for their rights. Technology has touched the sky, still some want to enjoy basic human needs. It is really very tragic when everything is available at finger tip even there is a big gap between haves' and haves' not.

Origin of the research Problem: A society can reach at its perfect state only when all members contribute. Unfortunately still half of the population has no rights to enjoy their life like other half. Feminism is a movement that began for equality between both genders around 110 years ago. It is really very upsetting even after a century women are still struggling. It is a world-wide problem, no country is exempted. In India, where many types of discrimination exist, it is also one of the biggest issue.

Objectives: India is purely patriarchal society who believes fanatically in gender roles. Even from the womb of the mother, society inculcates gender specific roles to an unborn child. It is very-very important that these types of project and research work should take place to aware people about the problem. It is really very pathetic here women are carrier for patriarchy. A man can understand feminism but to make understand a woman, about her rights, is even more difficult. Dowry killing, honour killing, eve-teasing, rapes (brutal rapes), acid attacks are very common in India. Therefore the main objective of the project is to aware society about the importance of equality- even after 75 years of independence, condition of women is not better.
