About the Webinar :

Blended teaching – learning is an approach to education that combines online educational materials & opportunities for interaction online with traditional place based class room method. This approach is considered to be more student centric and less teacher centric, as it provides the students the opportunity for self – regulated learning (SRL). However blended teaching requires the teacher to learn and try different methods of teaching-learning. The purpose of this webinar is to assist faculty of higher education in developing active learning strategies that will advance their personal skills sets to better embrace learner centered instruction with the use of technology tools for online and blended environment. Blending of synchronous and asynchronous mode makes the teaching – learning activity more effective. In the present Scenario of pandemic , the blended learning is adopted by many institutions of higher education. The use of this approach has improved the learning outcomes. UGC has emphasized on optimal use of ICT enabled pedagogy. So it is the need of the hour to understand the challenges and future of blended teaching -learning.
